The PEEL(R) paragraph method

Label	Meaning	What the sentence does	Typical linkers
Point	Topic sentence	States the main idea of the paragraph	The main reason… / Firstly… / However, I believe…
Explain	Explanation	Says why or how the point is true (often 2–3 sentences)	This is because… / Since… / As a result…
Example	Example	Gives a specific, realistic example	For example… / For instance… / In Bangladesh…
Link	Link / result	Connects back to the question or shows the result	Therefore… / As a result… / In this way…
Response	Response to the other side	Admits the opposite view, then answers it (the R in PEELR)	Admittedly… / Although… / However, …

PEEL বনাম PEELR: সাধারণ body paragraph-এ PEEL যথেষ্ট। কিন্তু opinion বা discussion essay-তে যখন বিপরীত মতকে মেনে নিয়ে জবাব

দিতে হয় ("Admittedly... However..."), তখন R (Response) যোগ করো — এতে লেখা আরও পরিণত ও যুক্তিপূর্ণ দেখায়, যা Band 7-এর জন্য গুরুত্বপূর্ণ।

1. GOV-01 — Lifestyle decisions: government or individuals?

Should governments make decisions about people's lifestyle, or should people make their own decisions?

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Individuals should make their own lifestyle decisions.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	The Role of Government: Laws, Lifestyle and Individual Freedom (the Health sheet has a second, health-focused answer to this question)
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 36 · BP1 92 · BP2 114 · Conclusion 41 · Total 283

Introduction · 36 words

While some people argue that governments should control how citizens live, others believe that these decisions belong to individuals. I completely support the latter view because adults have the right to run their own private lives.

Body Paragraph 1 · 92 words

Point On the one hand, people who support government action argue that laws can also protect people from harm. Explain Seat-belt laws, speed limits, bans on smoking in public places and food safety rules have saved many lives. Explain Dangerous behaviour can be controlled by clear rules; as a result, the whole of society becomes safer. Example For example, a driver who is fined for not wearing a seat belt may wear one every day, and this can save their life in an accident. Link For this reason, many people believe that governments should make lifestyle decisions.

Body Paragraph 2 · 114 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that individuals should decide because adults should have the right to make their own decisions about their private lives, as long as they do not harm others. Explain If governments decide what people eat, wear or do in their free time, citizens may feel that their freedom is being taken away, and they may lose trust in their leaders. Example For instance, a person who is told what clothes to wear may start to resent the government, which can damage public trust. Response Although some people argue that laws save lives, these rules are about public safety, not private lifestyle choices. Link Consequently, private decisions should be left to people themselves.

Conclusion · 41 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether lifestyle decisions should be made by governments or by individuals. While road safety laws can save lives, I firmly believe that people should make these decisions because freedom is essential in private life.

2. GOV-02 — More defence spending, fewer social benefits?

A government has a responsibility to its citizens to ensure their safety. Therefore, some people think that the government should increase spending on defence but spend less on social benefits. To what extent do you agree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely disagree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Education versus Defence · Welfare and Poverty
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	6 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 42 · BP1 116 · BP2 117 · Conclusion 38 · Total 313

Introduction · 42 words

It is sometimes claimed that, because governments must keep citizens safe, they should spend more on the military and less on social benefits. I completely disagree with this view because social benefits also protect people and excessive military spending is often wasteful.

Body Paragraph 1 · 116 words

Point The main reason why I disagree with this idea is that social benefits also protect people. Explain This is because the main argument for welfare is that it acts as a safety net, and people can lose their jobs, become seriously ill or suffer accidents through no fault of their own. Explain Without support, they may fall into deep poverty, lose their homes or be unable to feed their children; as a result, many citizens would face daily danger. Example For example, a worker who loses their job can still feed their family while they retrain, and this support can prevent a temporary problem from becoming a disaster. Link Therefore, social benefits make citizens safer, just as an army does.

Body Paragraph 2 · 117 words

Point Another important reason for my disagreement is that excessive military spending is often wasteful. Explain When governments buy more weapons than they need, they lose money for public services, as modern weapons are extremely expensive, and money spent on them cannot be used for schools, hospitals or infrastructure. Example For instance, a country with no immediate threat may buy new fighter planes while village hospitals have no medicine, which does little to protect ordinary families. Response Although some people argue that a government's first responsibility is to protect its citizens, a larger army cannot protect them from hunger, illness or unemployment. Link Consequently, defence spending should be sufficient to protect the country and should not grow at the cost of welfare.

Conclusion · 38 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that governments should not cut welfare in order to pay for more armed forces. Financial support keeps vulnerable people secure, and large weapons budgets also take money away from more useful public services.

3. GOV-03 — Childhood obesity: government or parents?

Some people think that the government is responsible for the rise in obesity in children, while others think it is the fault of the parents. Discuss both sides and give your opinion.

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Parents are responsible for the rise in childhood obesity.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	The Role of Government (protecting children) · Ch. 04 Health Idea Bank: Obesity — Causes and Responsibility (most highlighted sentences)
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 37 · BP1 100 · BP2 102 · Conclusion 42 · Total 281

Introduction · 37 words

While some people argue that the government is to blame for rising obesity among children, others believe that parents are at fault. I completely support the latter view because parents decide what their children eat every day.

Body Paragraph 1 · 100 words

Point On the one hand, people who blame the government argue that it controls the environment in which children grow up. Explain In some cities, there are few safe parks or playgrounds, so parents prefer to keep their children indoors. Explain Many children spend hours playing video games instead of playing outside, and they are surrounded by advertisements for snacks and soft drinks. Example For example, if junk food can be advertised freely during cartoons, children will keep asking for it, and this makes healthy eating harder for every family. Link For this reason, many people believe that the government is responsible for childhood obesity.

Body Paragraph 2 · 102 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that parents are responsible because parents decide what their children eat at home. Explain When children are young, they cannot make informed decisions, so they eat the food that adults provide. Example For instance, a child who is given fried snacks and soft drinks at home every day is likely to gain weight, whatever the government does. Response Although some people argue that advertising and the lack of parks are to blame, parents can prepare home-cooked meals, limit screen time, encourage outdoor play and act as role models. Link Consequently, parents hold the real responsibility for their children's weight.

Conclusion · 42 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether governments or parents are to blame for rising obesity among children. While advertising and a lack of parks make healthy living harder, I firmly believe that parents are responsible because they control daily meals.

4. GOV-05 — Cut arts funding to pay for education?

The government should lower the budget for the arts in order to allocate more money to education. To what extent do you agree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely disagree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Arts versus Science Funding · Education versus Defence · Healthcare and Public Services (waste and corruption)
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	2 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 44 · BP1 119 · BP2 107 · Conclusion 40 · Total 310

Introduction · 44 words

It is sometimes claimed that the government should cut its arts budget and move this money to schools and universities. I completely disagree with this view because the arts budget is too small to help education and cutting it would harm culture and learning.

Body Paragraph 1 · 119 words

Point The main reason why I disagree with this idea is that the arts budget is too small to make a real difference to education. Explain This is because arts funding is usually a very small part of public spending, while schools and universities need very large sums of money.

Explain Moving this money would not pay for many teachers or buildings; as a result, education would gain little and the arts would lose almost everything. Example For example, the cost of running a national theatre for a year might repair only a few village schools, and this would do little for an entire school system. Link Therefore, governments should look for this money in other places, such as by reducing waste and corruption.

Body Paragraph 2 · 107 words

Point Another important reason for my disagreement is that cutting the arts budget would harm culture and learning. Explain When public support disappears, culture suffers, because many valuable art forms, especially traditional ones such as folk music, crafts and classical dance, cannot survive on ticket sales alone. Example For instance, a folk dance group that earns little from tickets may close without public money, which would also end its free performances for local schoolchildren. Response Although some people argue that education is the foundation of long-term development, creative skills are an important part of that education. Link Consequently, reducing arts funding would damage the very thing that it is supposed to improve.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that taking money from the arts is the wrong way to pay for education. The amount saved would be too small to help schools, and the loss would also damage national culture and children's development.

5. GOV-06 — Can only governments change society?

Some people think that only the government can make significant changes in society, while others think that individuals can have a lot of influence. What is your opinion?

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Individuals can have a great influence on society.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	The Role of Government: Laws, Lifestyle and Individual Freedom · Museums, Libraries and Heritage (the Language Movement)
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	5 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 36 · BP1 96 · BP2 103 · Conclusion 42 · Total 277

Introduction · 36 words

While some people argue that only governments can bring about real change in society, others believe that individuals can be very influential. I completely support the latter view because many important changes began with ordinary people.

Body Paragraph 1 · 96 words

Point On the one hand, people who support the role of government argue that some problems are too large for individuals to solve alone.

Explain Only governments can pass laws, collect taxes and build national systems such as hospitals, schools, roads and electricity networks. Explain Large sums of public money are required for such projects; as a result, ordinary citizens cannot provide them. Example For example, no individual, however rich, could build a national railway alone, and this kind of project can change the lives of millions. Link For this reason, many people believe that only governments can make significant changes.

Body Paragraph 2 · 103 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that individuals have great influence because many important changes began with ordinary people. Explain When citizens refuse to accept injustice, they can attract wide support, and public campaigns often begin with citizens and later become government policy. Example For instance, the Language Movement of 1952 in Bangladesh was started by students and ordinary citizens, which shows that people can change history. Response Although some people argue that only governments can pass laws, today, social media allows a single person to raise awareness of a problem and mobilise thousands of supporters. Link Consequently, significant change does not depend on governments alone.

Conclusion · 42 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether major changes in society come from governments or from individuals. While governments have the power to pass laws, I firmly believe that individuals can be very influential because ordinary people started many important movements.

6. ART-01 — Is government money for the arts wasted?

Some people think that the government is wasting money on the arts and that this money could be better spent elsewhere. To what extent do you agree with this view?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely disagree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Arts versus Science Funding · Healthcare and Public Services
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	3 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 39 · BP1 102 · BP2 107 · Conclusion 35 · Total 283

Introduction · 39 words

It is often argued that public money given to the arts is wasted and should be used for other purposes. I completely disagree with this view because the arts protect a nation's culture and they also support the economy.

Body Paragraph 1 · 102 words

Point The main reason why I disagree with this idea is that the arts help to preserve a nation's culture and identity. Explain This is because music, literature, theatre and traditional crafts record a country's history and values, and they connect each generation with the last. Explain Public support matters most when foreign entertainment strongly influences young people; as a result, local traditions can survive alongside global culture. Example For example, a government grant can help a folk music group to perform in schools, and this allows children to learn about their own heritage. Link Therefore, money spent on the arts is an investment in national identity.

Body Paragraph 2 · 107 words

Point Another important reason for my disagreement is that the arts also support the economy. Explain When a country has a lively cultural life, it earns money, because museums, galleries, festivals and theatres attract tourists, who spend money on hotels, restaurants and transport. Example For instance, a traditional music festival can attract visitors from many countries and support local businesses, which creates income for families in the area. Response Although some people argue that this money should go to hospitals and schools, the amount spent on the arts is very small compared with their budgets. Link Consequently, arts funding brings real returns and should not be considered a waste of public money.

Conclusion · 35 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that government spending on the arts is a wise use of public funds. Cultural activities keep the country's heritage alive, and they also bring visitors and jobs to many communities.

7. ART-06 — Should the government fund low-paid artists?

Most artists earn low salaries and should therefore receive funding from the government in order for them to continue with their work. To what extent do you agree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely agree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Arts versus Science Funding · Welfare and Poverty — this essay also answers GOV-04, which asks the same question in different words
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 46 · BP1 102 · BP2 110 · Conclusion 38 · Total 296

Introduction · 46 words

Because most artists have low incomes, it is often argued that the government should give them financial support so that they can continue their work. I completely agree with this view because artists protect the national culture and many art forms cannot survive without public money.

Body Paragraph 1 · 102 words

Point The main reason why I agree with this idea is that artists protect the national culture. Explain This is because the arts, including music, literature, painting, theatre, dance and film, help to preserve a nation's culture and identity. Explain Art also tells each generation where it comes from; as a result, a country without active artists slowly loses part of its identity. Example For example, a small government grant can allow a village craftsperson to train young apprentices, so that a traditional skill such as nakshi kantha embroidery is passed on to the next generation. Link Therefore, artists whose work preserves traditional culture deserve public support.

Body Paragraph 2 · 110 words

Point Another important reason for my agreement is that many art forms cannot survive without public money. Explain When artists depend only on sales, their work is at risk, because many valuable art forms, especially traditional ones such as folk music, crafts and classical dance, cannot survive on ticket sales alone. Example For instance, a classical dancer who earns very little may leave the profession to find a better-paid job, which means that their skills are lost for ever. Response Although some people argue that artists should support themselves through the market, like any other business, the market rewards popularity and not cultural value. Link Consequently, government funding is necessary to keep these artists working.

Conclusion · 38 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that public money should be used to support artists who earn little. Their work keeps national traditions alive, and many creative fields would also disappear if they had to rely on commercial income.

8. SPA-01 — Should we send messages to life on other planets?

Some scientists think that there are intelligent life forms on other planets and that messages should be sent to contact them. Other scientists think it is a bad idea and would be dangerous. Discuss both views and give your own opinion.

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Messages should be sent to try to contact intelligent life.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Space Exploration
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	1 sentence (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 39 · BP1 99 · BP2 111 · Conclusion 41 · Total 290

Introduction · 39 words

While some scientists argue that sending messages to other planets would be dangerous, others believe that we should try to contact intelligent life. I completely support the latter view because the possible benefits are far greater than the risk.

Body Paragraph 1 · 99 words

Point On the one hand, scientists who oppose this idea argue that trying to contact intelligent life on other planets could be dangerous if it attracted unfriendly attention. Explain A more advanced civilisation might see humans as a threat or want to use Earth's resources. Explain Once a message is sent, it cannot be taken back; as a result, a single mistake could never be corrected. Example For example, a signal that reveals our location could never be recalled, and this could put the whole of humanity at risk. Link For this reason, many scientists believe that sending messages would be a serious mistake.

Body Paragraph 2 · 111 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that we should try to make contact because this could be one of the greatest discoveries in history. Explain When people learn that they are not alone in the universe, their understanding of life changes, and scientists may gain knowledge that could not be found on Earth. Example For instance, a reply from another planet could teach engineers about technology that we have never imagined, which could benefit people everywhere. Response Although some people argue that a message could attract an enemy, space is so large that any message would take many years to arrive. Link Consequently, the chance of such a discovery is worth this small risk.

Conclusion · 41 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether messages should be sent to intelligent life on other planets. While such contact could involve some danger, I firmly believe that messages should be sent because the benefits for science could be enormous.

9. SPA-02 — Is searching for life on other planets a waste of money?

The government is spending a lot of money to discover life on other planets. Some people think that the government is wasting money and should spend more money addressing the problems of the public. To what extent do you agree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely agree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Space Exploration · Healthcare and Public Services
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 50 · BP1 112 · BP2 103 · Conclusion 40 · Total 305

Introduction · 50 words

It is often argued that the large sums that governments spend on searching for life on other planets are wasted and should be used to solve people's problems. I completely agree with this view because basic human needs are more urgent and this research brings little benefit to ordinary citizens.

Body Paragraph 1 · 112 words

Point The main reason why I agree with this idea is that basic human needs are far more urgent. Explain This is because millions of people still live in extreme poverty, without enough food, clean water, healthcare or education. Explain The cost of a single major space mission could build many hospitals or schools; as a result, each mission represents a lost chance to save lives on Earth. Example For example, a family without clean drinking water gains nothing from a photograph of a distant planet, and the same money could give their whole village a safe well. Link Therefore, it seems wrong for governments to spend money exploring distant planets while their own citizens are suffering.

Body Paragraph 2 · 103 words

Point Another important reason for my agreement is that this search brings little benefit to ordinary citizens. Explain When a government funds this work, space programmes mainly benefit wealthy countries and companies, and the results may not appear for many decades. Example For instance, even if a probe found tiny living organisms on a distant planet, this discovery would not feed a hungry child or create jobs for unemployed graduates. Response Although some people argue that space programmes have given us useful satellites, these already exist, and searching for alien life adds little to them. Link Consequently, governments should move this money to health, education and poverty reduction.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that looking for life beyond Earth is a poor use of public money. Hunger and disease demand immediate action, and this kind of exploration also makes little difference to the daily lives of most citizens.

10. SPA-03 — Space exploration: waste or essential?

Some people think that space exploration is a waste of resources, while others think that it is essential for mankind to continue to explore the universe in which we live. Discuss both sides and give your opinion.

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Space exploration is essential for humanity.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Space Exploration
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	2 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 37 · BP1 102 · BP2 103 · Conclusion 40 · Total 282

Introduction · 37 words

While some people argue that space exploration is a waste of valuable resources, others believe that it is essential for humanity. I completely support the latter view because space research brings practical benefits to life on Earth.

Body Paragraph 1 · 102 words

Point On the one hand, people who oppose space exploration argue that it costs enormous sums of money, which could be used to solve urgent problems. Explain Millions of people still live in extreme poverty, without enough food, clean water, healthcare or education. Explain Huge budgets are spent on distant planets while these needs remain; as a result, governments seem to have the wrong priorities. Example For example, a farmer in a drought-hit region gains nothing directly from new pictures of a distant planet, and this can make such spending seem unfair. Link For this reason, many people believe that space exploration is a waste of resources.

Body Paragraph 2 · 103 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that space exploration is essential because it has brought many practical benefits to daily life. Explain When storms and floods threaten people, satellites, which were developed through space programmes, now provide weather forecasts, and these forecasts give families time to act. Example For instance, weather satellites can warn coastal communities in Bangladesh about cyclones several days in advance, and these early warnings have helped to save many lives. Response Although some people argue that this money should help the poor, these satellites protect poor communities directly. Link Consequently, funding space research is a wise investment for the future of humanity.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether space exploration wastes money or is necessary for humanity. While problems such as poverty are urgent, I firmly believe that this research is essential because its benefits already protect lives on Earth.

11. SOC-03 — Is giving money the best way to help homeless people?

Most societies have homeless people. Some people think that the best way to help them is to give them money. To what extent do you agree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely disagree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Welfare and Poverty
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 44 · BP1 110 · BP2 110 · Conclusion 40 · Total 304

Introduction · 44 words

It is sometimes claimed that giving cash is the most effective way to help people who have no home. I completely disagree with this view because money does not solve the deeper causes of homelessness and housing and training offer a more lasting solution.

Body Paragraph 1 · 110 words

Point The main reason why I disagree with this idea is that money does not solve the real reasons why people become homeless. Explain This is because cash alone does not solve the deeper causes of homelessness, such as unemployment, mental illness, addiction or family breakdown. Explain These problems need professional help and time; as a result, a person can receive money for many years and still sleep on the street. Example For example, someone with an addiction might spend the money in a way that makes the problem worse, and this could push them further away from a normal life. Link Therefore, cash may relieve a problem for a day without removing its cause.

Body Paragraph 2 · 110 words

Point Another important reason for my disagreement is that housing and training offer a more lasting solution. Explain When people have a safe place to live, they can begin to rebuild their lives, and governments can offer job training, help with finding work and basic healthcare. Example For instance, a homeless person who learns to repair mobile phones in a shelter may find steady work, which allows them to pay rent and live independently. Response Although some people argue that cash respects their freedom to decide what they need, freedom means little to someone with no home or job. Link Consequently, the best approach is to give people a hand up, not just a handout.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that handing out money is not the best way to support homeless people. Cash cannot deal with the problems behind their situation, and shelter and job skills also give them a real chance of independence.

12. SOC-04 — Financial aid or practical aid?

More developing countries are given aid from international organisations to help them with their development plans. Some people argue that financial aid is important, but others suggest that practical aid and advice are more important. Discuss both views and give your opinion.

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Practical aid and advice are more important than financial aid.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Foreign Aid · Rural Development (planned in Part 2F)
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 37 · BP1 95 · BP2 118 · Conclusion 39 · Total 289

Introduction · 37 words

While some people argue that money is the most useful form of international aid, others believe that practical help and advice are more important. I completely support the latter view because skills last much longer than money.

Body Paragraph 1 · 95 words

Point On the one hand, people who support financial aid argue that money is needed for large projects and emergencies. Explain Money allows countries to fund large projects quickly and respond flexibly to their own priorities. Explain Hospitals and bridges cannot be built without funding; as a result, poor countries often depend on outside help. Example For example, a country that receives money after a cyclone can quickly rebuild bridges and hospitals, and this helps thousands of families to return to normal life. Link For this reason, many people believe that financial aid is the most important form of support.

Body Paragraph 2 · 118 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that practical aid is more important because it builds skills that remain in the country long after the aid ends. Explain When local people are trained as doctors, teachers and engineers, they can solve problems themselves, and their countries become less dependent. Example For instance, foreign experts who train local engineers to maintain a water system leave behind skills that last for years, even after those experts go home. Response Although some people argue that large projects need money first, money may be stolen by officials or spent on projects that benefit powerful people rather than the poor. Link Consequently, it is better to teach a person to fish than to give them a fish.

Conclusion · 39 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether financial help or practical advice is more useful to developing countries. While money is valuable in emergencies, I firmly believe that practical aid is more important because it builds long-term self-reliance.

13. SPO-05 — Hosting international sports events

Many countries want to host international sports events, while other countries think that hosting sports events has more problems than benefits. Discuss both views and give your opinion.

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Hosting international sports events brings more problems than benefits.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Sports Facilities and Hosting Big Events
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 35 · BP1 106 · BP2 107 · Conclusion 42 · Total 290

Introduction · 35 words

While some countries are keen to host international sports events, others believe that these events bring more problems than benefits. I completely support the latter view because the costs of hosting them are usually enormous.

Body Paragraph 1 · 106 words

Point On the one hand, people who support hosting argue that it puts the host country in the international spotlight, improving its image and attracting tourists and foreign investors. Explain During the event, visitors spend money on hotels, restaurants, transport and souvenirs, which supports local businesses and creates temporary jobs. Explain New roads and metro lines are also built for these events; as a result, residents can benefit for many years. Example For example, a city that builds a new metro line for a tournament can still use it long after the event, and this improves daily travel for residents. Link For this reason, many countries want to host such events.

Body Paragraph 2 · 107 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that hosting creates more problems because the costs of hosting major events are often enormous. Explain When a government builds new stadiums and security systems, less money remains for schools, hospitals or housing, and several host cities have been left with large debts. Example For instance, a poor country may spend heavily on a stadium that is rarely used after the event, which wastes money that could have built many local schools. Response Although some people argue that tourists and new roads bring long-term benefits, these gains rarely cover the total cost. Link Consequently, international sports events are a poor use of public money.

Conclusion · 42 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether hosting international sports events brings more benefits or more problems. While these events can improve a country's image, I firmly believe that the problems are greater because they cost huge amounts of public money.

14. TRA-08 — Should foreign aid tackle infrastructure first?

Poor infrastructure hinders under-developed countries from progressing and modernising. Some people think that this should be the first problem tackled by foreign aid. To what extent do you agree with this opinion?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely agree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Foreign Aid · Rural Development · Public Transport versus Roads
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	3 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 43 · BP1 100 · BP2 109 · Conclusion 35 · Total 287

Introduction · 43 words

It is often argued that weak infrastructure holds back poor countries, so foreign aid should deal with this problem first. I completely agree with this view because good infrastructure allows the economy to grow and it also gives people access to essential services.

Body Paragraph 1 · 100 words

Point The main reason why I agree with this idea is that good infrastructure allows the economy to grow. Explain This is because poor infrastructure makes it difficult for farmers to sell their crops, for businesses to grow and for children to reach school. Explain Better roads, ports and electricity also attract foreign companies; as a result, new jobs and skills come into the country. Example For example, a foreign clothing company may open a large factory near a new port, and this can bring hundreds of jobs and useful skills to the local area. Link Therefore, good infrastructure lays the foundations for long-term development.

Body Paragraph 2 · 109 words

Point Another important reason for my agreement is that infrastructure gives people access to essential services. Explain When a village has roads and power, daily life changes, because a new bridge or road can connect isolated villages to markets and hospitals, transforming people's lives. Example For instance, a new road can allow a sick villager to reach a hospital in one hour instead of a whole day, which can save their life. Response Although some people argue that aid can be extremely valuable in emergencies, emergency help solves a problem for a short time and does not build a country's future. Link Consequently, foreign donors should make infrastructure their first goal in under-developed countries.

Conclusion · 35 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that foreign aid should focus first on building better infrastructure. Transport and power networks create economic growth, and they also connect remote communities with the schools and hospitals they need.
