Model Answers

1. FAM-01 — Why do parents push their children so hard?

Nowadays parents put too much pressure on their children to succeed. What is the reason for doing this? Is this a negative or positive development?

Essay type	Double Question — List + Opinion (reasons + opinion)
Position	Competition and social comparison are the reasons; this is a negative development.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Parental Pressure and Children's Success
Reused from Idea Bank	3 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 36 · BP1 112 · BP2 99 · Conclusion 34 · Total 281

Introduction · 36 words

Nowadays, many parents put heavy pressure on their children to achieve success. This is mainly because competition is intense and parents compare their children with others, and I firmly believe that this is a negative development.

Body Paragraph 1 · 112 words

Point One of the main reasons for this is intense competition. Explain Places at the best schools, universities and jobs are limited, and parents fear that their children will be left behind if they do not perform exceptionally well. Example For example, a father who knows that thousands of students compete for a few medical college seats may send his daughter to tuition every evening, and this leaves her little time to rest. Point Another important reason is social comparison with relatives and neighbours. Explain Parents may feel embarrassed if their child's results are worse than a cousin's; as a result, they demand even higher marks. Link Consequently, many children's lives become filled with study and little else.

Body Paragraph 2 · 99 words

Point As for whether this is positive or negative, I firmly believe that it is a negative development because it damages children's health and happiness. Explain Children who are constantly pushed may suffer from stress, anxiety, sleep problems and depression. Example For instance, a teenager who studies until midnight to meet her parents' expectations may lose sleep and feel anxious before every test, which harms both her health and her results. Response Although some people argue that moderate expectations can have positive effects, constant pressure turns learning into fear rather than motivation. Link Therefore, pushing children too hard does far more harm than good.

Conclusion · 34 words

In conclusion, parents push their children hard because competition is fierce and they compare them with other children. I firmly believe that this trend is harmful because it damages young people's health and happiness.

2. FAM-02 — Growing up in the city or the countryside?

Some people think it is better for children to grow up in the city, while others think that life in the countryside is more suitable. What are the advantages and disadvantages of both places?

Essay type	Advantages vs Disadvantages — Type 1 (discuss, no opinion; both places)
Position	No opinion is asked for, so there is no opinion or plan sentence. Each body paragraph gives one point for the city and one for the countryside.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	City or Countryside: Where to Raise Children
Structure	Adv/Disadv guide: Although-intro → BP1 advantages (7 sentences) → BP2 disadvantages (7 sentences) → While-conclusion
Reused from Idea Bank	6 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 40 · BP1 124 · BP2 134 · Conclusion 34 · Total 332

Introduction · 40 words

Parents often debate whether children should grow up in a busy city or in the quiet countryside. Although cities can be polluted and villages often lack good schools, urban areas offer more opportunities and rural areas provide a healthier environment.

Body Paragraph 1 · 124 words

Topic There is little doubt that both cities and the countryside offer considerable advantages to children. Point To begin with, cities offer many opportunities for children, especially in education and leisure. Explain This is because the best schools, colleges, libraries, hospitals and sports facilities are usually located in urban areas. Example For example, a girl in Dhaka who joins a coding club may discover a talent for computing, and this could shape her future career. Point In addition, the countryside offers a healthier and more natural environment where children can play freely. Explain As a result of cleaner air and outdoor play, rural children stay fit and healthy, which protects them from many illnesses. Summary Overall, each environment supports a different part of a child's growth, from learning to physical health.

Body Paragraph 2 · 134 words

Topic On the other hand, it cannot be denied that both places also have some drawbacks. Point Firstly, many city children experience health problems because of air pollution, traffic congestion and noise. Explain Without safe parks or playgrounds nearby, they often stay indoors; as a result, they spend more time on screens. Example For instance, a boy in a small city flat with no playground nearby may spend every evening watching videos, which can leave him unfit and unhealthy. Point Secondly, limited opportunities can be a serious obstacle in rural areas, as schools may lack qualified teachers, laboratories and libraries. Explain If a talented village child has no laboratory or science club, she may lose interest in science and, consequently, never reach her full potential. Summary Overall, these health and educational problems show that neither place is perfect for raising children.

Conclusion · 34 words

In conclusion, families must choose between urban and rural childhoods. While cities may harm children's health and villages may limit their education, cities offer more opportunities and the countryside gives them a healthier childhood.

3. FAM-03 — Grandchildren who rarely see their grandparents

In many modern societies, grandchildren rarely spend any quality time with their grandparents. What do you think are the consequences of this?

Essay type	Problems only (Cause/Problem + Solution guide, Section 14)
Position	No opinion is asked for. Grandparents become lonely, and grandchildren lose touch with family history and traditions.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Grandparents and Grandchildren · The Generation Gap and Time Together (planned in Part 2F)
Structure	Cause/Problem + Solution guide, Section 14: both answers in one sentence → BP1 Problem 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Problem 2 (P E E X L) → Same ideas in new words, no opinion
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 31 · BP1 110 · BP2 96 · Conclusion 31 · Total 268

Introduction · 31 words

In many modern societies, grandchildren rarely spend quality time with their grandparents. This can lead to loneliness among older people and a loss of family history and traditions for the children.

Body Paragraph 1 · 110 words

Point The most serious consequence is that many grandparents lose the joy and purpose that time with their grandchildren once gave them. Explain Playing with children, helping with homework or teaching a skill keeps older people mentally and physically active, and it makes them feel valued and needed. Explain When this contact disappears, grandparents may feel isolated and forgotten, which can harm their mental health. Example For example, a grandmother in a village who sees her grandchildren only during Eid may spend most of the year feeling lonely and unwanted, and her health may suffer as a result. Link Consequently, many older people lose both their happiness and their sense of purpose in the family.

Body Paragraph 2 · 96 words

Point Another consequence is that children lose touch with their family's past. Explain Through stories, songs, recipes and traditions, grandparents pass on knowledge about the family's past and the community's way of life. Explain Without this contact, children may lose touch with their family history, traditional values and even their mother tongue or regional dialect. Example For instance, a child who never hears their grandfather's stories about the Liberation War may know little about their own family's history and the sacrifices it made. Link Over time, the generation gap may widen, making it harder for different generations to understand each other.

Conclusion · 31 words

In conclusion, when grandchildren and grandparents rarely meet, older people often feel lonely and forgotten. Children, in turn, lose valuable family stories, values and traditions that connect them with their past.

4. FAM-04 — Why do generations spend less time together?

Nowadays, it seems that different generations within the family spend less time doing activities together. Why is that? Is it a positive or negative development?

Essay type	Double Question — List + Opinion (reasons + opinion)
Position	Busy lives and technology are the reasons; this is a negative development. Same essay as Model Essay A in the Double Question guide.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	The Generation Gap and Time Together · Technology, Television and Family Life
Reused from Idea Bank	1 sentence (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 35 · BP1 114 · BP2 106 · Conclusion 34 · Total 289

Introduction · 35 words

Members of different generations in a family now seem to share fewer activities. This is mainly because modern life is busy and technology separates people, and I firmly believe that this is a negative development.

Body Paragraph 1 · 114 words

Point One of the main reasons for this is the busy modern lifestyle. Explain Parents often work long hours, while children spend much of their time at school, in private tuition and doing homework. Example For example, a father who returns home late from the office may find that his son is still at a tuition class, and this means that they rarely eat together. Point Another important reason is technology, which has changed the way families spend their evenings. Explain In the past, relatives gathered to watch the same television programme, whereas each member may now spend free time in a separate digital world. Link Consequently, a family can live in one home and still share very little time.

Body Paragraph 2 · 106 words

Point As for whether this trend is positive or negative, I firmly believe that it is harmful because shared activities strengthen family relationships. Explain When relatives eat, talk and travel together, they learn to understand and support each other, and children feel more secure and confident. Example For instance, a teenager who talks to their parents at dinner every evening is more likely to ask for help with a problem, which may stop it from becoming serious. Response Although some people argue that video calls can connect generations, a short call cannot replace the closeness of time spent together. Link Therefore, this loss of family time is clearly a negative development.

Conclusion · 34 words

In conclusion, families share less time because daily schedules are crowded and digital devices keep relatives apart. I firmly believe that this change is damaging because it weakens the closest bonds in people's lives.

5. FAM-05 — Should children watch television regularly to learn?

Children can learn effectively by watching television. Therefore, they should be encouraged to watch television regularly at home and at school. To what extent do you agree or disagree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely disagree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Technology, Television and Family Life
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	3 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 45 · BP1 108 · BP2 117 · Conclusion 42 · Total 312

Introduction · 45 words

It is sometimes claimed that children learn well from television, so they should be encouraged to watch it regularly at home and at school. I completely disagree with this view because passive watching does not replace active learning and too much television harms children's development.

Body Paragraph 1 · 108 words

Point The main reason why I disagree with this idea is that passive watching does not replace active learning. Explain This is because much television is designed mainly for entertainment, and watching passively does not replace active learning, play and conversation. Explain Children simply sit and receive information without asking questions or solving problems; as a result, they quickly forget much of what they see. Example For example, a child who builds a model volcano with a teacher usually remembers more about science than a child who only watches a programme about it, and this shows the value of active learning. Link Therefore, television cannot be an effective way of teaching children regularly.

Body Paragraph 2 · 117 words

Point Another important reason for my disagreement is that too much television harms children's development. Explain When television becomes a daily habit, the results can be serious, as children who watch a lot of television or play video games often spend less time playing outside, reading or talking with others. Example For instance, a four-year-old who watches cartoons all afternoon may have less conversation with adults, which can slow their language development. Response Although some people argue that well-made documentaries, educational programmes and learning apps can teach children about science, nature, history and languages, these can be used occasionally and do not need to be a regular habit. Link Consequently, television should not be encouraged as part of a child's daily routine.

Conclusion · 42 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that children should not be encouraged to watch television regularly at home or in the classroom. Sitting in front of a screen is a weak way to learn, and it also damages their health and social skills.

6. FAM-06 — Discipline or nurturing?

Some people think that the role of parents is to discipline their children and teach them about right and wrong. Other people consider that the main responsibility of parents is to nurture their children and provide them with a safe environment to grow up in. Discuss both sides and give your opinion.

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Nurturing is the main responsibility of parents.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Parenting: Discipline versus Nurturing
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	3 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 42 · BP1 97 · BP2 111 · Conclusion 40 · Total 290

Introduction · 42 words

While some people argue that a parent's main role is to discipline children and teach them right from wrong, others believe that it is to nurture them in a safe home. I completely support the latter view because loved children become confident.

Body Paragraph 1 · 97 words

Point On the one hand, people who support discipline argue that children need clear rules to become responsible adults. Explain Without discipline, children may become selfish, rude or uncontrollable, and they may fail to respect teachers, elders and the law. Explain Bad behaviour is often repeated if it is never corrected; as a result, it can become a lifelong habit. Example For example, a child who is never punished for lying may continue to lie at school and later at work, and this can damage their relationships. Link For this reason, many people believe that discipline is the main duty of parents.

Body Paragraph 2 · 111 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that nurturing is the main responsibility of parents because children who feel loved and secure become more confident. Explain When a home is warm and stable, children have the emotional strength to learn and make friends, and they can cope with stress better. Example For instance, a teenager who feels safe at home is unlikely to hide problems from their parents instead of asking for help, which allows the family to solve them early. Response Although some people argue that children need strict correction, punishment without love can make them fearful or even rebellious. Link Consequently, love and safety are the most important things that parents can provide.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether parents should mainly discipline or nurture their children. While clear rules teach children how to behave, I firmly believe that nurturing is more important because love and security give young people confidence.

7. FAM-07 — Both parents working: reasons and problems

Most modern families have both parents working, and as a result, children spend less and less time with their parents. What is the reason for this? What problems can this cause?

Essay type	Double Question — List + List (reasons + problems)
Position	No opinion is asked for. High living costs and women's careers are the reasons; less supervision for children and stressed parents are the problems.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Working Parents and Childcare · Changing Gender Roles, Marriage and Having Children
Structure	Double Question guide (List + List): Answer 1 + answer 2 → BP1 = Q1, List block (P E X P E L) → BP2 = Q2, List block (P E X P E L) → Both answers in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	5 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 36 · BP1 114 · BP2 106 · Conclusion 34 · Total 290

Introduction · 36 words

In most modern families, both parents work, so children see less of them. This is mainly because living costs are high and more women build careers, and this can lead to less supervision and stressed parents.

Body Paragraph 1 · 114 words

Point One of the main reasons for this is that the cost of living has risen sharply, especially in cities. Explain Housing, education, healthcare and transport are expensive, and many families need two incomes simply to meet their basic needs. Example For example, a family in Dhaka with two school-age children may find it almost impossible to pay the rent and school fees on one salary, and this forces both parents to work. Point Another important reason is that more women are now highly educated and want to use their skills and build careers. Explain Society increasingly accepts women's employment; as a result, many couples see a career for both partners as normal. Link Consequently, dual-income families have become common.

Body Paragraph 2 · 106 words

Point The most serious problem caused by this trend is that children may receive less attention and supervision. Explain Without supervision, some children may spend too much time on screens, eat unhealthy food or fall into bad company. Example For instance, a twelve-year-old who comes home to an empty flat every afternoon may play online games for hours instead of doing homework. Point Another problem is the stress that working parents face. Explain Working mothers in particular often face a double burden, doing paid work during the day and most of the housework and childcare in the evening. Link Consequently, family life can become tired and tense for both parents and children.

Conclusion · 34 words

In conclusion, both parents go out to work mainly because of rising living costs and women's career ambitions. However, this leaves children with less supervision and puts working parents, especially mothers, under heavy pressure.

8. FAM-08 — Do children benefit from moving?

The nuclear family is well adapted to move geographically due to its size. Do you think children benefit in any way from moving? Do you think the advantages outweigh the disadvantages?

Essay type	Advantages vs Disadvantages — Type 2 (outweigh)
Position	The advantages clearly outweigh the disadvantages. BP1 also answers "Do children benefit in any way?".
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Nuclear Family versus Joint Family · City or Countryside: Where to Raise Children
Structure	Adv/Disadv guide: Although-intro → BP1 advantages (7 sentences) → BP2 disadvantages (7 sentences) → While-conclusion
Reused from Idea Bank	2 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 49 · BP1 131 · BP2 133 · Conclusion 44 · Total 357

Introduction · 49 words

Being small, nuclear families can move to new places more easily than large ones. Although moving may cause children stress and separate them from relatives, it also gives them access to better schools and teaches them to adapt. In my opinion, the advantages of moving clearly outweigh the disadvantages.

Body Paragraph 1 · 131 words

Topic There is little doubt that moving to a new place offers considerable advantages to children. Point To begin with, the most significant benefit is access to better schools and facilities in larger cities. Explain This is because the best schools, colleges, libraries, hospitals and sports facilities are usually located in urban areas. Example For example, a child whose family moves from a small town to Dhaka may join a science club, and this could spark a lifelong interest. Point In addition, moving not only broadens children's experience but also teaches them to adapt to change. Explain As a result of making new friends and settling into new routines, children develop confidence and flexibility, which help them later at university and work. Summary Overall, a well-planned move can prepare children for both academic success and a changing world.

Body Paragraph 2 · 133 words

Topic On the other hand, it cannot be denied that moving also has some drawbacks for children. Point Firstly, many children experience stress when they suddenly lose close friends and must join a new school. Explain Without familiar faces around them, they often feel lonely; as a result, their schoolwork may suffer for several months. Example For instance, a teenager who changes school in the middle of exam preparation may fall behind, which can lower his final results. Point Secondly, distance from relatives can be a serious obstacle, as nuclear families can be isolated after a move. Explain If grandparents live far away, children may have little contact with them and, consequently, lose an important source of love and support.

Summary Although these social and family challenges can be painful at first, most children overcome them once they settle in.

Conclusion · 44 words

In conclusion, relocating for work or study has become common for small families. While a move may upset children and separate them from relatives, it brings better schooling and teaches them to adapt. Therefore, I firmly believe that the benefits far outweigh the drawbacks.

9. FAM-09 — How are elderly people treated today?

In the past, the older generation were a source of knowledge and experience. Nowadays, the older generation have little understanding or experience of the modern world. Has this had any negative impact on the way the elderly are treated by society and the family? What could be done to solve this situation?

Essay type	Double Question — Opinion + List (opinion + solutions)
Position	Yes, this has harmed the way older people are treated; digital help from young relatives and community activities could improve the situation.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	The Generation Gap and Time Together · Technology, Television and Family Life · Caring for Elderly People · Grandparents and Grandchildren
Structure	Double Question guide (Opinion + List): Answer 1 + answer 2 → BP1 = Q1, Opinion block (P E X R L) → BP2 = Q2, List block (P E X P E L) → Both answers in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	3 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 39 · BP1 115 · BP2 109 · Conclusion 36 · Total 299

Introduction · 39 words

Older people were once valued for their knowledge, but many now know little about the modern world. I firmly believe that this has harmed the way they are treated, and digital training and community activities could improve the situation.

Body Paragraph 1 · 115 words

Point I firmly believe that this change has had a negative impact because older people's advice is now often ignored. Explain Young people who grow up with digital technology may communicate in ways that older relatives do not understand, and grandparents who cannot use smartphones may feel excluded from family conversations that take place online. Example For example, a grandfather who cannot use a smartphone may be left out when his family plans a trip in an online group chat, which makes him feel unimportant. Response Although some people argue that families still respect their elders, many older people now feel that nobody asks for their opinion. Link Therefore, this knowledge gap has clearly harmed how elderly people are treated.

Body Paragraph 2 · 109 words

Solution The most effective solution is for young people to teach older relatives how to use technology. Explain Young people can teach older relatives how to use smartphones, while older people can share their wisdom and experience. Example For instance, a grandson who shows his grandfather how to make video calls may also hear stories about his grandfather's youth, which brings them closer. Solution In addition, communities could create more chances for older people to stay active. Explain Community centres, social clubs and volunteer programmes can keep older people active and connected, reducing loneliness and allowing them to share their skills and experience. Link Together, these measures would help society value its elderly members again.

Conclusion · 36 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that older people's limited knowledge of modern life has led others to ignore them. Sharing digital skills within families and offering community activities would help the generations respect each other again.

10. FAM-10 — Couples who choose to have no children

In many western countries there is an increasing number of couples choosing to have no children. What are the advantages and disadvantages to couples having no children?

Essay type	Advantages vs Disadvantages — Type 1 (discuss, no opinion)
Position	No opinion is asked for, so there is no opinion or plan sentence; both sides are discussed in balance.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Changing Gender Roles, Marriage and Having Children · Caring for Elderly People
Structure	Adv/Disadv guide: Although-intro → BP1 advantages (7 sentences) → BP2 disadvantages (7 sentences) → While-conclusion
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 38 · BP1 130 · BP2 133 · Conclusion 34 · Total 335

Introduction · 38 words

In many Western countries, more couples are deciding not to have children. Although this choice may leave them without family support in old age and contribute to an ageing society, it also gives them more freedom and money.

Body Paragraph 1 · 130 words

Topic There is little doubt that choosing not to have children offers considerable advantages to some couples. Point To begin with, such couples often have more time and money for their careers, hobbies, travel and each other. Explain This is because they do not need to plan their lives around school hours, childcare or family holidays. Example For example, a childless couple can start a business or move abroad for work, because no children depend on their income. Point In addition, childless couples avoid the stress and costs of raising children, which are rising as education and housing become more expensive. Explain As a result of these savings, they can often afford a higher standard of living, and their relationship may become closer. Summary Overall, a life without children can give couples greater independence and financial security.

Body Paragraph 2 · 133 words

Topic On the other hand, it cannot be denied that this choice also has some drawbacks. Point Firstly, many childless people experience loneliness, as they may lack family support in old age. Explain Without children to visit or care for them, they depend on paid carers; as a result, their final years may feel empty. Example For instance, an elderly widow who has no children may have no one to take her to hospital, which can make illness frightening. Point Secondly, falling birth rates can be a serious obstacle, as they can lead to an ageing population and fewer workers to support pensions and healthcare. Explain If many couples make this choice, taxes on workers may rise and, consequently, the economy may slow down. Summary Overall, these personal and social problems can affect both childless people and the wider community.

Conclusion · 34 words

In conclusion, staying childless is now common in the West. While such couples may lack care in old age and contribute to an ageing population, they enjoy greater freedom and a higher living standard.

11. FAM-11 — Elderly care: family or government?

These days people are living into their 90s and beyond. As a result, there is increasing concern about care for the elderly. Do you think it is the responsibility of the family to care for their elderly members, or should the government be held responsible?

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Families should be responsible for caring for their elderly members.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Caring for Elderly People · Nuclear Family versus Joint Family
Structure	Discuss Both Views guide: Both views + clean opinion → BP1 the other view (P E E X L) → BP2 my view (P E X R L) → Both themes + opinion in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	2 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 37 · BP1 97 · BP2 115 · Conclusion 40 · Total 289

Introduction · 37 words

While some people argue that governments should be responsible for caring for older citizens, others believe that this is the duty of their families. I completely support the latter view because older people feel happier at home.

Body Paragraph 1 · 97 words

Point On the one hand, people who support government care argue that families cannot always meet the needs of older people. Explain Many adults work long hours or live far from their parents, and some cannot afford expensive treatment. Explain Serious illnesses require trained staff; as a result, elderly people may need professional medical care that family members are not trained to provide. Example For example, a patient with dementia may need help day and night from trained nurses, and this is difficult for a busy family to provide. Link For this reason, many people believe that the government should be responsible.

Body Paragraph 2 · 115 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that families should care for older relatives because parents spend many years raising their children, so it seems natural that children should look after them in old age. Explain When older people stay with their families, they feel loved and respected, and their mental health is usually better. Example For instance, in many joint families in Bangladesh, grandparents eat with their grandchildren every day and teach them traditions, which gives them a strong sense of purpose. Response Although some people argue that trained nurses offer better medical care, medical care alone cannot replace the love and company of relatives. Link Consequently, looking after the elderly should be the responsibility of the family.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether families or governments should look after elderly people. While trained staff can provide good medical care, I firmly believe that this duty belongs to families because older people need love and company.

12. FAM-12 — More freedom for children: positive or negative?

Children these days have more freedom than in previous generations. Do you think this is a positive or negative development?

Essay type	Advantages vs Disadvantages — Type 3 (positive or negative?)
Position	This is a positive development: the benefits outweigh the risks when parents set clear limits.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Children's Freedom and Independence
Structure	Adv/Disadv guide: Although-intro → BP1 advantages (7 sentences) → BP2 disadvantages (7 sentences) → While-conclusion
Reused from Idea Bank	8 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 46 · BP1 131 · BP2 135 · Conclusion 41 · Total 353

Introduction · 46 words

Compared with earlier generations, children today enjoy far more freedom to choose their activities, friends and clothes. Although this freedom can expose them to online dangers and weaken discipline, it also builds independence and encourages creativity. In my view, this development brings more benefits than drawbacks.

Body Paragraph 1 · 131 words

Topic There is little doubt that greater freedom offers considerable advantages to children growing up today. Point To begin with, when children are allowed to make their own decisions, they develop independence, confidence and responsibility. Explain This is because a child who chooses their own hobbies, manages a small amount of money or travels to school alone learns practical life skills. Example For example, a girl who manages her own pocket money soon learns to save, and this habit helps her throughout her life. Point In addition, freedom not only builds independence but also encourages creativity and self-expression in young people. Explain As a result of exploring their own interests, children often become more curious and innovative, which helps them at school and work. Summary Overall, freedom prepares children well for the decisions and challenges of adult life.

Body Paragraph 2 · 135 words

Topic On the other hand, it cannot be denied that more freedom also has some drawbacks. Point Firstly, many children face online dangers, as they do not always have the maturity to understand risks. Explain Without supervision, they browse freely; as a result, they may be exposed to violent or inappropriate content, online bullying or strangers with bad intentions. Example For instance, a twelve-year-old who chats with strangers online may share personal details, which could put her in danger. Point Secondly, a lack of rules can be a serious obstacle, as too much freedom may also weaken respect and discipline. Explain If children are rarely told "no", they may struggle to accept rules at school or in society and, consequently, become disrespectful towards teachers. Summary Although these safety and discipline problems are real, most children avoid them once parents set clear limits.

Conclusion · 41 words

In conclusion, modern children are given much more independence than in the past. While this freedom may expose them to online risks and weaken discipline, it helps them become confident, responsible and creative. Overall, I believe this is a positive development.

13. FAM-13 — Family values or school knowledge?

The values we gain from our parents and family have more influence over our future success than any skills or knowledge learned in school. To what extent do you agree or disagree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely agree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Family Values, Personality and Success
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 45 · BP1 100 · BP2 120 · Conclusion 40 · Total 305

Introduction · 45 words

It is often argued that the values we learn from our families affect our future success more than any skills or knowledge from school. I completely agree with this view because family values build a person's character and they also keep people motivated after failure.

Body Paragraph 1 · 100 words

Point The main reason why I agree with this idea is that family values build a person's character. Explain This is because, from an early age, children learn from their parents how to behave, how to treat others and how to respond to challenges. Explain Honest and reliable people are respected at work; as a result, they receive more responsibility and more opportunities over time. Example For example, an employee who learned honesty from their parents may refuse a bribe, and this decision can earn them the trust of their managers and customers. Link Therefore, character is one of the strongest foundations of long-term success.

Body Paragraph 2 · 120 words

Point Another important reason for my agreement is that family values keep people motivated after failure. Explain When life becomes difficult, knowledge alone may not help, because these values often determine whether a person keeps trying after failure, behaves ethically and earns the trust of others. Example For instance, many doctors and engineers in Bangladesh come from poor village families that taught them to work hard and never give up, which helped them to overcome serious difficulties. Response Although some people argue that schools provide the knowledge and qualifications that are required for most careers, many successful people come from families with limited wealth or education but strong values. Link Consequently, the lessons that we learn at home have the greatest influence on our future.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that the values learned at home matter more for success than anything taught in the classroom. They shape honest and reliable adults, and they also give people the strength to continue when they face setbacks.

14. SOC-02 — Why do fewer women feel the need to marry?

In many countries women no longer feel the need to get married. Some people believe that this is because women are able to earn their own income and therefore do not require the financial security that marriage can bring. To what extent do you agree?

Essay type	Agree / Disagree
Position	I completely agree.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Changing Gender Roles, Marriage and Having Children
Structure	Agree/Disagree guide: Opinion + 2 ideas → BP1 Idea 1 (P E E X L) → BP2 Idea 2 (P E X R L) → Opinion + 2 ideas in new words
Reused from Idea Bank	5 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 48 · BP1 100 · BP2 117 · Conclusion 40 · Total 305

Introduction · 48 words

In many countries, fewer women now feel that they have to marry, and it is often argued that this is because they can support themselves financially. I completely agree with this view because women now have their own income and marriage is no longer necessary for financial security.

Body Paragraph 1 · 100 words

Point The main reason why I agree with this idea is that women now have their own income. Explain This is because one of the biggest changes is that more women are working outside the home. Explain Women's employment has improved family incomes and given many women financial independence and greater confidence; as a result, they can make important life decisions for themselves. Example For example, millions of women work in the garment industry in Bangladesh, and increasing numbers are doctors, teachers, engineers and business owners, which gives them real choices. Link Therefore, employment has given many women the freedom to choose their own future.

Body Paragraph 2 · 117 words

Point Another important reason for my agreement is that marriage is no longer necessary for financial security. Explain When a woman can pay for her own home, food and other needs, she no longer has to depend on a husband, so marriage becomes a choice and not a necessity. Example For instance, a young doctor who earns a good salary can live independently and take time to find the right partner, which was impossible for many women in the past. Response Although some people argue that it reflects a wider change in values, this new freedom is possible only because women now earn their own money. Link Consequently, financial independence is the main reason why fewer women feel the need to marry.

Conclusion · 40 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that earning their own money is the reason why many women no longer feel they must marry. Paid work has given them independence, and they also no longer need a husband to feel financially secure.

15. COM-05 — Were people happier in the past?

Introduction · 38 words

It is sometimes claimed that people in earlier generations were happier than people are today. I completely disagree with this view because people today live longer and healthier lives and they also have far more freedom and opportunities.

Body Paragraph 1 · 110 words

Point The main reason why I disagree with this idea is that people today live longer and healthier lives. Explain This is because, thanks to better healthcare and living standards, people are living much longer than in the past. Explain Many diseases that once killed children can now be prevented or cured; as a result, fewer families suffer the pain of losing a loved one at an early age. Example For example, a family in the past might have lost a child to an infection that a simple medicine can cure today, and this kind of tragedy is much rarer now. Link Therefore, modern people have a strong reason to feel more secure and content.

Body Paragraph 2 · 112 words

Point Another important reason for my disagreement is that people now have far more freedom and opportunities. Explain When people can choose their education and career, they can build the life they want, and women's employment has improved family incomes and given many women financial independence and greater confidence. Example For instance, many women in the past had no chance to study or choose their own careers, which limited their happiness throughout their lives. Response Although some people argue that a large family can provide emotional and financial support, this close family life often came with poverty and fewer choices. Link Consequently, it is wrong to imagine that life in the past was happier than life today.

Conclusion · 35 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that earlier generations were not happier than people living today. Modern medicine gives us longer lives, and better education and job opportunities also allow us to choose how we live.

Introduction · 35 words

While some people argue that teenagers lead happier lives than adults, others believe that this is simply not true. I completely support the latter view because young people today face serious pressures of their own.

Body Paragraph 1 · 90 words

Point On the one hand, people who believe that teenagers are happier argue that they have fewer responsibilities. Explain Most teenagers do not have to earn money, pay bills or look after a family. Explain Adults are often exhausted by long working hours, job insecurity, heavy workloads; as a result, they have little time to relax. Example For example, a teenager can spend a holiday with friends, while their parents may still be answering work calls, and this makes youth seem carefree. Link For this reason, many people believe that teenagers are happier than adults.

Body Paragraph 2 · 111 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that teenagers are not happier because students face intense pressure to achieve high exam results, often from their parents and teachers. Explain When school work fills every day, teenagers have little rest, and their worries about results can become very stressful. Example For instance, in Bangladesh and other parts of Asia, children often attend school during the day and private tuition in the evening, with little time for play or rest. Response Although some people argue that teenagers have no bills to pay, social media has added a new source of pressure, especially for young people. Link Consequently, youth is not a happier time of life than adulthood.

Conclusion · 41 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether teenagers are really happier than adults. While young people have fewer financial worries, I firmly believe that they are not happier because exam pressure and social media create serious stress in their lives.

17. COM-16 — Is intelligence innate or learned?

Some people think that intelligence is innate, while others think that we can improve our intelligence through learning. Discuss both sides and give your opinion.

Essay type	Discussion (both views + opinion)
Position	Intelligence can be improved through learning.
Ideas from Idea Bank (Part 3)	Family Values, Personality and Success

Reused from Idea Bank	4 sentences (highlighted)
Word count	Intro 35 · BP1 92 · BP2 92 · Conclusion 42 · Total 261

Introduction · 35 words

While some people argue that intelligence is something that we are born with, others believe that it can be developed through learning. I completely support the latter view because experience and education shape our abilities.

Body Paragraph 1 · 92 words

Point On the one hand, people who see intelligence as innate argue that intelligence and personality are largely determined by genes. Explain Some children learn to read or count much earlier than others, even with the same teachers. Explain Special abilities are sometimes shown with very little teaching; as a result, many people think that they must come from birth. Example For example, a child prodigy may solve difficult mathematical problems at the age of eight with very little training, and this suggests a natural ability. Link For this reason, many people believe that intelligence is innate.

Body Paragraph 2 · 92 words

Point On the other hand, I firmly believe that we can improve our intelligence because people can improve their abilities through learning and practice. Explain When children receive good teaching and regular encouragement, their thinking develops, and their confidence grows too. Example For instance, children whose parents read to them develop better language skills, which helps them to understand difficult ideas at school. Response Although some people argue that certain children are naturally quicker, some people who did poorly at school later become very successful because of their determination. Link Consequently, intelligence is not fixed at birth.

Conclusion · 42 words

In conclusion, people hold different views on whether intelligence is fixed at birth or can be improved. While genes may give some children an early advantage, I firmly believe that learning matters more because good teaching and practice can develop anyone's abilities.

18. COM-17 — Is our personality fixed by our genes?

Introduction · 42 words

It is sometimes claimed that our personality is fixed by our genes before birth and that it can never be changed. I completely disagree with this view because upbringing strongly shapes our character and people can also change as they grow older.

Body Paragraph 1 · 106 words

Point The main reason why I disagree with this idea is that upbringing strongly shapes our character. Explain This is because, from an early age, children learn from their parents how to behave, how to treat others and how to respond to challenges. Explain Children who feel loved and safe tend to be more confident, curious and emotionally stable; as a result, the same child could develop very differently in another home. Example For example, very strict parents who use shouting, threats or physical punishment may make children fearful, anxious or rebellious, and these feelings can last into adult life. Link Therefore, our character is not decided only by our genes.

Body Paragraph 2 · 115 words

Point Another important reason for my disagreement is that people can change as they grow older. Explain When adults start new jobs or become parents, they often become more patient and responsible, as many people change aspects of their personality as they grow older and face new challenges. Example For instance, a shy student who joins a debating club may slowly become a confident speaker, which shows that a character trait can be changed through effort. Response Although some people argue that babies are born with different personalities, everyday experience shows that the environment, including family, education and life experiences, has a strong influence. Link Consequently, it is wrong to say that nothing can be done to change our character.

Conclusion · 38 words

In conclusion, I firmly believe that our personalities are not permanently fixed by genes before birth. Family life plays a powerful role in forming who we are, and experience and effort also allow us to develop throughout life.

Introduction · 38 words

While some people argue that our first impression of a person is very important, others believe that we should take time to know them before judging. I completely support the latter view because first impressions are often inaccurate.

Body Paragraph 1 · 91 words

Point On the one hand, people who value first impressions argue that they are often all we have. Explain First impressions matter: candidates who are well prepared, dress appropriately and communicate confidently are more likely to succeed. Explain Quick decisions must be made in many situations; as a result, people depend on what they first see. Example For example, an interviewer who has only twenty minutes with each candidate must judge them quickly, and this first view can decide who gets the job. Link For this reason, many people believe that first impressions are very important.

Body Paragraph 2 · 116 words
